_Chapter_ _One_

**The Beginning****

Our story begins in the vast capital of **_Fiore, Crocus._** In the streets lied multiple stands selling fruit, food, magical items and such of nature. The buildings were mostly apartments, restaurant, bars and even guild halls. The people were human, mages, and surprisingly etherious demons. This showed that all three learned to live together in harmony. During this time we see an young boy running down the streets, his hair appearing as a dirty blonde, his eyes seemed like pure gold. His eyes appeared this way because his iris and pupil being the exact same color. He also shipped a pair of horns. One being larger than the other. The stand owners shouted out "Good Afternoon, Adler!" The multiple men and woman shouted to the young boy, revealing his name as he waved back to all of them, it seemed as if he was infamous in this part of the city, the boy continued to run, exhaling deep breaths as he finally reached his destination. The guild called **'Sleeping Forest'** was in front of him. The guild was at an dead end. The building also had its name written on the roof of the guild, the words surrounded by multiple patches of grass, along with vines and flowers on the actual words. The boy entered the guild. Surprisingly all of us didn't notice that the boy had the guild stigma on the back of his right palm, the guild sign looking like an forest of thorns while the words 'SF' in white was written in the middle. But while we just noticed this the boy got sent back, an fiery fist met his face, crashing into the ground that was inches away from his respective guild. The person who punched

Adler was surprisingly a female, the flames on her fist dispersing as she sported a red jacket with a pair of very high high water white pants. Her feet were only covered up with sandals. "What did you do that for!?" Adler exclaimed. The girl began walking towards him. "It's been awhile since I've punched you!" The girl yelled back as she pushed away her pitch black hair away from her sea blue eyes. The girl then reached her hand out, attempting to pull Adler up as he had a small punch mark on his nose, Adler raised up. Walking into the guild with the girl. "Welcome back!" Everyone yelled to Adler as he had a large smile on his face. Sam clapped an unexpectedly strong hand across Adler's narrow shoulders, "When did you get so popular?" She beamed pleasantly, bloating Adler's self esteem even more. He smiled smugly, averting his gaze as his cheeks turned red with blush. "Wellâ€¦" He paddled off, brushing his fingers through his hair just as an oddly strong force brushed him aside entirely. "Hey watch i-.." Adler's voice trailed to an untimely halt upon full analyze of this mystery man, who's amber gaze engulfed Adler in a vortex of judgment. The young demon began to feel his knees buckle in fear. Just that meager shove alone was enough to tell Adler he was way out his league. The guild's cheering raged on as the hooded man ventured further into the Hall's ranks. Many members clasped friendly hands upon his back, laughing in glee, and offering their respects in the form of drinks and conversation. All the while Adler stood in shock, realizing they weren't addressing him at all.. Seeking some form of comfort, he turned his gaze to Sam, who's mouth was ajar with awe. Her eyes twinkled like a child's on Christmas morning, but they weren't focused on presents.. No, like everyone else, her attention was entirely directed towards the hooded man. So much in fact, that she didn't even realize that Adler was already out of the door.

Adler marched down the streets of Crocus. Thoughts of envy and anger clouded his judgment. He knew he was being childish but it didn't stop the hurt.. No it just multiplied it, like the constant whispering of the pedestrians that ventured towards the halls in literal packs. "Did you hear!? He's back!" Or "I can't believe he's returned!". Apparently everyone knew what Adler didn't, and it was eating him away. He couldn't take it anymore, pulling himself into a nearby alley way he hunkered down next to an abused barrel, gripping and tearing at his hair. He couldn't understand, why was this getting to him? Why does this hurt so bad? He questioned, bludgeoning the cobbled ground at his feet with a balled fist. Clusters of rock and debris flew from the tiny fist sized crater, and rolled out of the alleyway in a cloud of debris. During all this Adler looked out of the alley, seeing the large crowd roaming the streets as he saw a suspicious man, this man specifically sported a black cloak that had a hood and he was wearing it, but he also sensed a strange form of magical pressure from himâ€¦ It resembled the hooded man that had struck fear into Adler!

After seeing this Adler began to piece things together. "Is he controlling that dude?" Adler questioned himself multiple times, grabbing his head, confused to what to do in this situation. Meanwhile all this is happening screams are being heard from the streets, Adler rushed out as he saw a gigantic magic explosion coming from the direction ofâ€¦ the Sleeping Forest guild!?

Adler stared in that direction as he took off. After that action this ended Fairy Tail: Unity Chapter 1.
